Return inspection

All good things come to an end, and so does your journey together with your leasing car. We collected together the instructions for returning the car.

Here at Ayvens, all returning leasing cars go through the return inspection. The inspection is carried out by an independent outside company. The return inspection is done to all cars according to the same process.

During the return inspection, the inspector will

- Inspect the car, inside and out
- Photograph the car
- Document the inspection
- Record all things that may need repairs
- Give a preliminary assessment on the repair costs
- Gives guidance on filling in the damage report, when required

If repair needs are found during the inspection, they will be done cost-effectively, with regard to the age and mileage of the car. For example, small dents are smoothed out with methods that do not break the paint surface.

The return inspection is documented and damages are photographed. The return inspection form on the inspection carried out, showing all potential defects and damages, will be sent to the customer by email within about one week. However, it is possible to review the inspection on-site, in which case the return inspection form is given to the customer straight away.
